Risk, governance & accountability

21-23 June 2010
King's College London, UK

The Society for Risk Analysis (SRA) is a multidisciplinary, scholarly international society that provides an open forum for all those who are interested in risk analysis. Risk analysis is broadly defined to include risk assessment, risk characterisation, risk perception and communication, risk management, and risk policy. Our interests include risks of concern to individuals, to public- and private-sector organisations, and to society at a local, national or global level. SRA-Europe is a regional organisation of the Society for Risk Analysis.

The 2010 SRA-Europe conference will be hosted by King's College London and aims to facilitate interaction among all actors in the field of risk: academics from across the disciplines, policy makers, the private sector, NGOs and other interest groups. The special theme of the conference will be 'Risk, Governance & Accountability'. This theme reflects the increasing centrality of risk analysis to decision-making in a wide range of policy and organisational contexts and the increasing demands by the public for decision-makers to account for outcomes.

Each conference day will open with a plenary session with keynote presentations, followed by parallel sessions of oral papers, round-table discussions and symposia reflecting particular themes of interest.

Presentations are welcomed on topics that span across the range of SRA themes, new fields of risk-related research, as well as the special conference theme of 'Risk, Governance & Accountability'.
